The 180th Fighter Wing is the proven choice for the current fight. Always mission focused and equipped, we ensure the 180FW is the best valued fighter wing in the Total Force. Our mission, vision and priorities listed here are the foundation to our success and to preserving your trust and respect.

The Ohio National Guard has two Commanders in Chief – The Governor of Ohio and The President of the United States. The vast majority of time, during day-to-day operations or when a natural disaster strikes, we are under the command of the Governor of Ohio. The Governor has the power to activate the Ohio National Guard to support and assist local authorities during state emergencies or for homeland defense. That is our state mission. For example, during the Toledo water crisis that happened a few years ago, the Governor activated the National Guard, mostly Army and the 200th Red Horse Squadron (not the 180FW) to support local citizens with water stations and information on where citizens can get potable water.

The wing is composed of five groups: Maintenance Group, Operations Group, Mission Support Group and Medical Group all reporting to the Wing commander, Col Doyle.

The 180th has evolved from a one weekend a month, two weeks a year force, to an expertly-trained, fully-deployable operational force. We had men and women deployed providing combat engineering expertise that built roads and infrastructure, security forces with boots on the ground providing security, mechanics turning wrenches ensuring jets were in the air providing support, even a chaplain assistance in the farthest reaching place on earth, Antarctica.

Our Airmen are part of the less than one percent of the nation’s population who wear a military uniform. Their commitment and sacrifices ensure the freedom of the remaining 99%.

The 180th Fighter Wing gained the Aerospace Control Alert mission in 2008. ACA was created to avoid another 9/11 from happening by protecting America’s air-space. We are strategically located within the US. 59% of America’s population lives within 600 miles of the state of Ohio. We protect the skies over America with the Aerospace Control Alert mission and can respond within minutes when called.

Our F-16 Fighter Jets are ready to respond in a moment’s notice, 24 hours a day, and in any weather condition, rain, snow, sleet or shine. They protect the people, major metropolitan areas, railway transportation hubs, nuclear power plants, freshwater ports and shipping lanes within the Eastern Defense Sector from harm.
